LOS ANGELES – Susan Fowler McNally, partner with Gilchrist & Rutter PC, which conducts a broad practice in the areas of real estate, business and commercial transactions, environmental law, land use and civil and complex business litigation, has been admitted into the American College of Real Estate Lawyers (ACREL). Selected by invitation only, ACREL's distinguished, nationally-known lawyers work to promote continued growth and improvement in real estate law through upholding high standards of professional and ethical responsibility, making educational materials available and staying up-to-date on the latest developments in all aspects of real estate law. Ms. McNally has been selected for inclusion based on her legal acumen as well as her consistent leadership in the commercial real estate industry.

“I am honored to be accepted into such a prestigious organization,” said Ms. McNally. “I look forward to leveraging the knowledge and experiences gained through my membership to promote the continued advancement of the real estate industry.

Ms. McNally's practice focuses on commercial real estate and business transactions, specifically in acquisition and disposition, development/construction, financing and leasing of commercial buildings. Considered an expert in her field, she frequently speaks and writes on commercial real estate issues. Ms. McNally also has a particular expertise in sustainability and helps clients navigate the local, state and federal laws dealing with their projects' environmental impact.

ACREL is comprised of the nation's premier real estate attorneys selected after a rigorous screening process. ACREL lawyers uphold high standards of professional and ethical conduct, and have made significant contributions to the real estate and legal professions as a whole.
