

Greenberg Traurig Expands New Jersey Office with Addition of Lori G. Singer

Morristown, NJ, April 7, 2010 -- The international law firm Greenberg Traurig LLP announced the addition of Lori G. Singer, Of Counsel, to its New Jersey Litigation Practice. Singer will focus her practice on complex litigation and environmental law. She joined the firm from Herrick Feinstein LLP, where she was Of Counsel.

Singer has experience handling complex multi-party litigations. She has dealt with product liability matters, having defended pharmaceutical companies and automotive industry manufacturers in multi-district litigations ("MDL") and class actions. Singer also handles a wide variety of general commercial litigation matters in both state and federal courts. In addition, she has years of experience in environmental law -- prosecuting and defending environmental cost recovery actions in both state and federal courts, negotiating environmental risk allocation in real estate and commercial transactions, and counseling clients on brownfields development, Industrial Site Recovery Act compliance and compliance with state and federal environmental regulations.

"We are pleased to have Lori as a member of our dynamic firm," said Philip R. Sellinger, Managing Shareholder of the New Jersey office. "With her litigation experience and her broad knowledge of environmental regulations, Lori will provide clients with comprehensive, thorough service."

With a team of more than 500 attorneys, Greenberg Traurig's Litigation Practice offers firsthand experience and wide-ranging resources to protect clients' interests in virtually every area of litigation. Greenberg Traurig's trial lawyers regularly appear in state and federal courts throughout the country, as well as in appellate courts and before international arbitration panels.

Singer earned her J.D. from the University of Pennsylvania Law School, her M.A. from Bryn Mawr College and her B.A., summa cum laude, from Temple University.
