Susman Godfrey's Newly Designed Houston Office: An Apt Home for Cutting Edge Law and Art

HOUSTON, TX – Susman Godfrey has long been known for winning big-stakes commercial litigation cases. Now, Susman Godfrey has added to this firm's reputation its newly remodeled Houston office – an apt home for both cutting-edge law and cutting edge art.

The nouveau/contemporary office design is a stark contrast from the typical law firm environment. The office combines modern style with a wide range of paintings and sculptures from prominent contemporary artists - including Robert Rauschenberg, Geoff Winningham, and Perry House.

A unique feature is the 35 foot illuminated color wall in the spacious lobby area that cycles through different colors as guests stay occupied by viewing a 42-inch plasma TV. Attorney offices are spacious and custom-furnished in a way that allows the expression of each lawyer's unique personality. Other perks include conference rooms that are outfitted with the latest high-tech capabilities, kitchen areas featuring stainless steel appliances, and marble countered bathrooms that would be the envy of any private home.

"Over a long career, I have been in a lot of fine offices around the world," said Earl Littman, chairman and founder of P.O.P. Broadcasting Co., "but I have never seen anything in such good taste as Susman Godfrey's newly remodeled Houston office. As I walked around, I felt myself getting more jealous by the minute."

"Our office space reflects who we are and how we practice law. It says 'we're trendsetters' and will certainly raise the level of excitement with any potential associate who comes for an interview with our firm," said Kim Herbsleb, Susman Godfrey's firm recruiter.

Managing partner Stephen D. Susman says, "Our offices in Houston have been on the cutting edge of contemporary design since we moved into them more than twenty years ago. Once again, our new offices in Houston and Dallas are light, airy and unlike most traditional law offices, just as we are unlike most law firms. The key has been to turn over design decisions to the architects and get the lawyers to focus on winning lawsuits."

Susman Godfrey's new office space was designed by Gensler. Earlier this year – for its design of the firm's new Dallas office – this architectural firm received the Commercial Design Excellence Award from the Texas and Oklahoma chapter of the International Interior Design Association. The firm expects similar recognition for this project.
